Oil Tanker Overturns

Turning over on her side and partly filling with water, the oil tanker Alden Anderson, which has been burning in Suisun bay, off Peton, between Martinez and Avon, all last week, exploded from generated steam and sank yesterday leaving only a small portion of her bow above the water. This continued to burn throughout the afternoon.

With the turning over of the tanker, burning oil was cast upon the waters, which reached for more than a 100 yards, threatened the Shell oil docks, a half a mile away. Precautions were taken to insure their safety.

Germany Pleased Over Election of Republican

(By Universal Service)
BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The election of Coolidge and Dawes was greeted by Germany with satisfaction but without enthusiasm. Success of the Republican ticket was welcomed because "it leaves things as they were" and because it "insures continuation of America's present policy," which is taken to mean active participation in economic Europe and the development of friendship between Germany and America.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—Returns received from yesterday's election from 5750 precincts in the state out of a total of 7524 give for President Coolidge 599,926; La Follette 322,020; Davis, 88,569.

California has gone for Coolidge and Dawes by almost 300,000 votes, one of the greatest majorities ever recorded in this state.

Returns show the following: City and County of San Francisco, 882 precincts complete, give Coolidge 74,569; Davis 10,003; La Follette 68,705.

Coolidge virtually swept the Pacific coast, carrying in addition to California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming and Utah.

In Utah the gubernatorial contest between Geo. W. Hunt, democratic incumbent and Dwight Heard, republican, overshadowed in interest the presidential election in that state. The race for governor is so hotly contested that tonight it appears as if an official count may be necessary to determine the winner.

While giving Coolidge a majority, the Montana electorate registered a preference for a democratic governor. Late returns give Erickson 68,477 and Dixon 53,311.

Idaho went into line so did for Coolidge and Senator Wm. C. Borah. The republican overy also was elected.

La Follette showed unexpected strength in Nevada and the issue of that state remained doubtful until complete returns are available.

In the long run, however, Coolidge and Dawes came out ahead.

The Coolidge vote in Oregon and Washington was a veritable landslide, especially in Oregon, where he led 2 to 1.

In addition to the presidential election in California the voters of this state registered their verdict on several questions and propositions submitted to them, among which were the following:

No. 5. Transfer of bonds. This measure was overwhelmingly defeated. It was fought against by ex-service men because it threatened to invalid benefit received by them.

No. 7. Boxing and wrestling contests. This was passed by a good sized majority.

No. 16. water and power act—this measure was defeated by a large majority. Opponents claimed the bill would give preferred rights to state owned public utilities against private owned utilities.

On a charge of reckless driving, W. A. Macdonald of Oakland was fined $25 by Justice L. F. Grover, yesterday morning. Macdonald crashed into a car driven by Joseph Mann, Oakland, at the foot of the tank farm hill north of San Pablo Tuesday night.

SECOND COURT FIGHT LIKELY OVER TEXAS

Battle May Delay Seating of Mrs.
Miriam Amanda Ferguson
As Governor

MAY CONTEST ELECTION

Upsets Shown in Senatorial Fights
Throughout The Country

By W. BOYD GATEWOOD
DALLAS (Texas), Nov. 5.—Another drawn out court fight, contesting the election of Mrs. Miriam Amanda Ferguson as Governor of Texas appeared likely tonight if present plans of the Republican State organization are carried out in behalf of Dr. George C. Butte, who now challenges "Ma's" majority, hinting fraud and irregularity in the count.

Dr. Butte, backed by his manager, Colonel W. E. Talbot, and the headquarters staff, claimed tonight that the gubernatorial election is still in doubt, charging that in numerous precincts ballots bearing his name written in on the Democratic column had been illegally thrown out.

Meanwhile the Texas election bureau, tabulating returns of the election, announced that it was certain Mrs. Ferguson had won by a majority of between 100,000 and 150,000 votes cast. The count is not yet complete and likely will not be for several days, it was said.

DAVIS CARRIES OKLAHOMA

(By Universal Service)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 5.—There is no longer doubt but that John W. Davis has carried Oklahoma. It was evident here tonight that the results from better than two-thirds of the precincts in the state show Davis with a margin of 27,185 over Coolidge. J. C. Walton's defeat became even more evident. His republican opponent, W. B. Kine, maintained a large majority.

SENATOR DAVID WALSH IS DEFEATED

(By Universal Service)
BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Senator David I. Walsh, plumed knight of the bay state democracy, has evidently gone down to a glorious defeat. Returns from all but two Boston precincts and all but 76 precincts outside the city show the senator trailing Speaker Gillette, republican, by 6,000 votes.

MONTANA SENATOR'S MARGIN SLIGHT

(By Universal Service)
HELENA, (Montana), Nov. 5.—Montana has returned Thomas J. Walsh's majority was not as large as supporters expected, however. While not becoming open, the question of religion was injected into the fight by the Ku Klux Klan element in the city. Another influence that cut the vote was the campaign admonition that it was the "duty of Montana" to re-elect him and if it did not do so it would disgrace itself. Third was the vigorous assault of sheep growers for his attitude on the tariff.

Offer Cup in Golf-Tourney

The directors' cup, given by the Berkeley county club, will be contested for on November 6, the course to consist of eighteen holes of media play. On the same date the annual meeting of the club will be held, at which time the chairman of the woman's golf will be elected. The meeting is at 1 o'clock.

November 20 is invitational day. A team match, captained by the two lowest handicaps, will be held on November 13.

British Favor Result of U. S. Election

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, Nov. 5.—The British Foreign office opinion is that the victory of President Coolidge will be followed by continuation of a policy of "economic collaboration" with Europe. They believe there will be no interference in politics, but "economic collaboration" only and that only will continue if a disposition is shown to reduce armament and fund the debt owed America.

ADMINISTRATION WILL CONTROL NEW CONGRESS

Total Electoral Vote Now At

MAGNUS JOHNSON LOSES

Sweeping Victory Brings Republicans Into Control

By JAMES R. NORRIS
By Universal Service
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—President Coolidge won more than a four year term in the white house in the nation wide sweep of yesterday's election.

His electoral vote now stands at 379, with 129 for Davis and 13 for La Follette. Coolidge carried 31 states of the union; Davis 13 and La Follette 1.

There remains yet the probability that New Mexico's three votes may be switched from the Davis column to Coolidge, raising the president's total to 382 and leaving Davis 135.

But the real victory achieved is embodied in the fact that as leader of his party Coolidge carried into power with him enough senators and representatives to give his administration a dominant control over the next congress.

MAGNUS JOHNSON IS DEFEATED

By G. FRANKLIN WISNER
By Universal Service
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Outstanding results in the Senatorial race were the apparent defeat of Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor party, by Thomas D. Schall, Republican, and of Stark W. Brookhart by Daniel P. Stock, Democrat, in Iowa.

Because these two Senators failed repeatedly to support administration measures the Republican commentators their guns upon them. While Brookhart won the nomination as a Republican, word was sent down the line by Republican leaders on the eve of the election for their votes to get back of Stock, the Democratic candidate and apparently they did in great numbers.

The remarkable flip-flop of the voters in the State is evidenced by the fact that in the primary Brookhart won the nomination over the regular Republican by more than 100,000.

In Minnesota the fight was a straight out and out battle between Magnus Johnson, who had the support of the Progressive and Republican, and Thomas D. Schall, who had the support of the regular Republicans.

New Members Are Initiated

An initiation of candidates was held last night at the meeting of the W. B. A., order of Macabees, No. 59. Mrs. Rena Laufer, commander, presided.

As a conclusion to the regular business of the evening refreshments were served by Mrs. Rena Laufer.

BONDS CARRY

Richmond people are to be congratulated for the overwhelming way in which they voted the $39,000,000 bond for the development of the Mokelumne river project which will mean the supplying of the East Bay cities with clean, pure water.

Without exception the measure carried in every pre-— this vote here is due to the work of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce through its secretary, Guy W. Wolf.

The only active campaign in favor of the bonds waged in Richmond was backed by the Chamber of Commerce, and to it belongs the credit for the victory here.

There was and is, no doubt about the value of the measure, and the benefits that it will bring to the East Bay in the form of an almost limited water supply, and water that will be conducive of good health on the part of the residents of the East Bay.

Last minute efforts to defeat a measure are sometimes effective, particularly where that measure involves a bond issue and the showing made in Richmond for the bonds should be a matter of pride to the citizens of this city, and to the Chamber of Commerce whose able work aided materially in bringing about that result.

RICHMOND'S PART IN ELECTION

It is a gratifying thing to those who have backed President Coolidge since his campaign first started to see that others in the city shared their confidence in his ability and gave him a strong majority both in Richmond and Contra Costa county as well as throughout the nation.

California had been listed as a "doubtful" state. The laboring man would vote for LaFollette, the progressive backers declared. Richmond, one of the biggest industrial centers in the state, showed the fallacy of that argument from the very first moment that the returns started to roll in.

LaFollette ran stronger than Davis, but Coolidge's lead was never in doubt.

The record vote cast here indicates the interest that was taken in the election and is a very favorable sign. A community that casts a heavy vote is a live community; it indicates that its people are abreast of the times and are not content to sit back and let the other fellow do the work.

The Republican victory was striking in its completeness. Few times in the history of the country has any party won by such a large majority.

THE AIR FIELD

Richmond has gained favorable publicity from all parts of the state on its acquisition of an air field. It marks a step forward and a step that will undoubtedly bring a large amount of business to this city in the future.

Commercial aviation is in its infancy, a trite expression, no doubt, but one that best expresses the condition. For infants grow up, and when commercial aviation reaches the zenith of its powers Richmond will be one of the first cities on the Pacific coast to benefit. This city will be marked on all air maps and will be not only on the east-west air lines but on the north-south ones as well.

The field will be used both by army and commercial flyers and when Richmond people decide to abandon the flivver of the road for the flivver of the air, it will be handy to land in your own front yard.

WILD FRIENDS

Jack Miner, a Canadian hunter, hunts no longer. He told the American Humane association, the other day: "Market hunting is not sport, but murder in the first degree."

When he hunted wild birds and beasts, he says, they knew him as their deadly enemy. Finally it occurred to him that if they recognized an enemy, instinctively, they would likewise recognize a friend. So he became a friend to them, and found it was so. Birds love him, and come back to him every year in great flocks.

"I have thousands of feathered witnesses," he testifies, "that actually know my voice, and at times will come when I call to them." He has learned to know the birds as they know him. He has mastered a few notes of the wild goose language, and can tell, when blindfolded, what the geese are doing.

Many people will doubtless agree with Minter that this is much better than slaughtering wild life, either for profit or pleasure.

Funny things happen. Mexico will pay the interest on her debt.

Fashion Hints

By MARY MARSHALL

Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Here's a Good Way to Make Last Year's Wool Frack Useful and Attractive for Another Season.

SLEEVES have assumed more importance this season than for many seasons past. Delectable designers and dressmakers suggested more ornamentation and variety in sleeves than women in general cared to take seriously. But the fact remains that we have turned our thoughts definitely to sleeves as ground for decoration.

There is a deep, slightly flaring cuff extending from the elbow or slightly above it to the wrist that is characteristic of new mode, and quite often it is a contrasting and decidedly ornate consideration. A French fashion writer points to this sleeve as offering excellent opportunity to the home dressmaker in remodeling a frock of last season. And the idea is one worth banding on to the American woman who turns nimble fingers to account in reviving last year's frocks.

The sketch shows a charming new frock making use of this sleeve idea. The frock is of navy blue rep with the large cuff and pocket of white cloth embroidered in black with here and there a glint of silver thread. The sleeve design is in the form of a large cartwheel, and any large circular motive might be made use of. Your last season's navy blue one-piece frock, hanging in the back of your wardrobe waiting to be sent off in the next bundle of old clothes, may be brought to life agreeably by the addition of just such cuffs and pockets.

As the season's taste is developing in matters of dress there seems to be more and more inclination to wear washable lingerie collars and cuffs on dark one-piece frocks. With the younger girls these collars and cuffs are often of perfectly plain, slightly stiffened linen, but for older women sets made of fine embroidered batiste or mull and lace are more becoming.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

FURS YOU KNOW
The Raccoon

THIS American Indian, called this animal the "arathcone," and early American settlers christened this to raccoon, and later to coon. Coon-skin is an accepted term for the fur of the raccoon.

The raccoon has undergone great change in status within recent years. Every young flapper nowadays wants to have a raccoon coat but once the young lady of fashion would have scorned to wear any thing so coarse. Trappers and rough farmers wore raccoon caps, each cap being made from the skin of one animal with the tail of the coon hanging down the back. Coon-skin coats were worn by men working in sections of the country where the winters were severe, and in these coats the furs were usually very crudely dressed and put together. But the good quality raccoon coat of today is a different proposition.

The raccoon skin is considered as worthy of good work and high-class dressing as any other fur, and the pelt as it is finally turned out is fine and silky, well put together and moreover very durable and warm.

There is a great difference, experts say, in the value of a raccoon coat, depending on the way in which it is worked. Sometimes very little of the skin is cut away so that a good-sized coat can be made of two dozen skins, while a coat made from skins that have been trimmed off all save the back section will require as many as thirty skins.

—feel tired, weak and discouraged? Then look to your kidneys. Many occupations tend to weaken the kidneys. Constant back-ache, headache, dizziness and rheumatic pains are the results. You suffer annoying bladder irregularities; feel nervous, irritable and worn out. Don't wait! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Workers everywhere recommend Doan's. Here's a Richmond case:

Mrs. Geo. Schiltz, 1322 Bissell Ave., says: "Hard work affected my kidneys and caused lame back. When I washed, I had cutting pains through my kidneys. I felt tired all the time and could hardly do my housework. My kidneys didn't act right and my feet swelled badly. I used Doan's Pills and they gave me re-

Mrs. Schiltz is only one of many Richmond people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Pills. TODAY'S INSTALLMENT

XXXVIII—DIFFICULT MARRIAGE OR EASY DIVORCE

It was late the next morning when Pat awakened under the awning outside their tent. The men had gone off to inspect some property.

Pat's great relief, but Carol handed her an envelope, saying: "Mr. Hewitt put those addresses you wanted in here for you; said there really wasn't any great hurry, but it would be also for all of us if you got the letter written and off your mind so that we could all go hiking this afternoon."

Pat smiled at her sister tolerantly, suspecting that she knew more than she pretended to about the letter in question.

Should she write to his lawyer? Should she seek a divorce from Andrew? Surely she couldn't go back to him. Then why not? she mused, going off toward her tent.

But when she picked up her writing case and spread it out on her lap she found her glance wandering out to the horizon from whence the rider with the morning's mail forwarded from Chicago would come.

He might have a letter for her, a letter from Andrew. He might be ill, might need her.

Such a possibility made her smile. In spite of her perplexity, Andrew had never been ill a day in his life, and he would be the last to admit that he needed her even if he did.

But such musing saved her from admitting to herself the fact that she dreaded to face that she was still in love with Andrew.

After a few minutes of scribbling on a sheet of paper, she idly picked up a petal from the flower on the ground beside her, and pulling it to pieces proclaimed: "He loves me; he loves me not," and when it came out in the affirmative she flushed self-consciously.

"Wonder what the flip of a coin would advise me?" she went on to herself, taking out a nickel and tossing it in the air with a whispered, "Heads win!"

She looked at the coin gratefully, and picked up her writing materials again. How nice it was to find that foolish superstitions and games always agreed with one's inner convictions. Slowly and carefully she addressed an envelope to the firm of lawyers Hewitt had recommended to her.

Then she folded a blank sheet of paper which she enclosed in it. Then, feeling like a reckless spendthrift she addressed one to Andrew.

It was with difficulty that Patricia refrained from bursting into tears. Andrew made it so hard for her to go on loving him, and yet down in her heart—

"Oh, well," she shrugged her shoulders as she rose to go for a walk with the others, "perhaps if Andrew would insist on making her marriage too hard, there was always the easy road of divorce."

It was with difficulty that Patricia refrained from bursting into tears. Andrew made it so hard for her to go on loving him, and yet down in her heart—

draw and pouring all of her tenderness and personal longing for him and words, covered page after page.
She had no idea that she would mail
it. She would give vent to her feelings only this once, then, if Andrew didn't want her, he need never know.
She was not a child. She knew enough to value the great affection which Gregory Hewitt had for her.
But at luncheon time when the men came back and joined them,
Pat drew Hewitt aside and told him,
"Don't please me to do anything more," she asked of him. "Let me think it out here in the hills."
"We would be so happy," he urged.
"Yes," she admitted, a vision of the wealth he offered swaying her as much as her genuine liking for him. "But—"

She couldn't go on for what she was thinking of was "Pat what about Andrew?" And she realized that in this new life she was contemplating Andrew would not, could not, figure.

"Take your own time to think it over," Hewitt told her, but without enthusiasm, "but don't let it be too long. I knew the first moment that I ever saw you that I would move mountains to make you mine."

Carol, handed Pat a card from Hewitt.

It didn't make him any happier
when the boy brought the mail deposited a letter with a foreign postmark on the table before Patricia.
Obviously she was waiting for her husband's letter.

But as a matter of fact the letter didn't make Patricia much happier either, for her husband still refused to understand why she had left him.

"When you decide to come back to New York," he wrote, "you might inquire about a house down near Bayshore. You have always wanted to be out in the suburbs, and there we would have easy access to the big clubs and roadhouses, and it would be a nice place to entertain people I have met several people on this trip who will be coming to the States later, and with your help
I could land big things through them. I am sorry if my telegram seemed brusque, but I am sure that you realize by now how childish and unreasonable you were. You have always been so splendid about helping me."

It was with difficulty that Patricia refrained from bursting into tears.
Andrew made it so hard for her to go on loving him, and yet down in her heart—

"Oh, well," she shrugged her shoulders as she rose to go for a walk with the others, "perhaps if Andrew would insist on making her marriage too hard, there was always the easy road of divorce."

Colleen Moore in Dual Role in Film at California

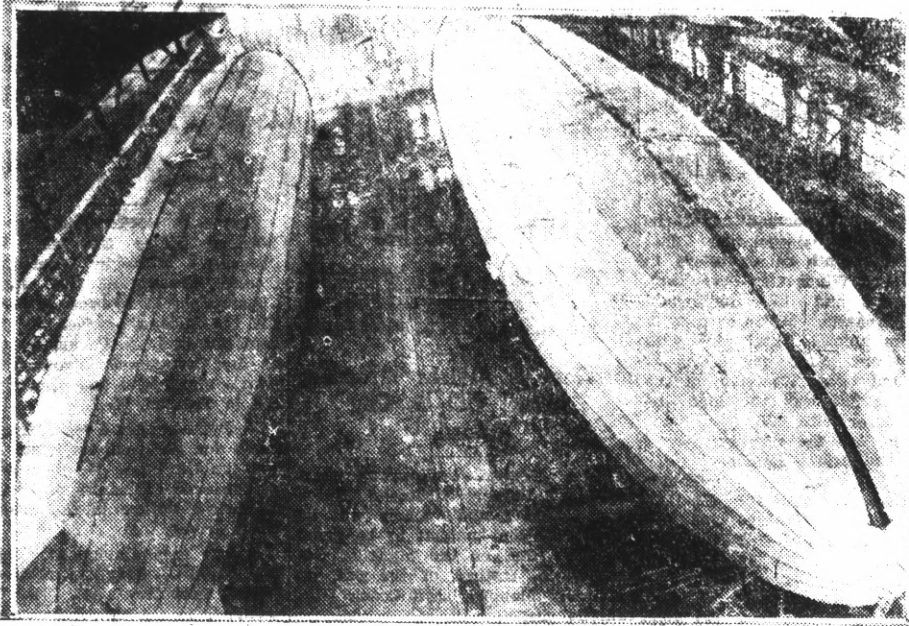

Acknowledged the screen's greatest comedienne, Colleen Moore demonstrates in "Flirting With Love," which opened last night at the California theatre, that her range of ability is not confined to comedy by any means.

In this picture, in which she is co-featured with Conway Tearle, she portrays a role which at times calls for a highly emotional type of acting and in these tensely dramatic scenes she is not found wanting. The charm of this talented young actress is irresistible and those who are Colleen Moore fans—and they are legion judging from the success of her recent pictures—and find in "Flirting With Love" that their favorite can bring tears as well as provoke laughter.

"Flirting With Love" is excellent entertainment. The story with the stage as a background, is plausible and yet unique. There is nothing trite or hackneyed about the plot or theme, and on the whole it is a refreshing change from the general run of films.

The play deals with the romance of an actress, a highly temperamental stage player who pretends to lose her memory that she might get into the home of the man responsible for censoring her successful show. Later she feigns dual personality, and it is in this assumed character in which Miss Moore demonstrates her versatility. She is called upon to play in reality two parts in one—that of herself, temperamental, nervous and high strung, and also the character of her "other personality," demure, shy and diffident.

The transition from one character to the other creates no end of humorous situations, giving way to genuine pathos and drama when the actress finds herself in love with the man she stayed out to ruin.

Miss Moore shares the co-featured honors with Conway Tearle in this picture. Tearle is ideal in the role of the attorney, play-censor and amateur psychologist.

Alleging Desertion Asks for Divorce

Alleging that her husband, Christ Googates, deserted her over two years ago and that since that time he has failed to contribute to her support, Marquerite Googates filed suit for divorce in the Superior Court at Martinez yesterday. According to the complaint the couple were married in 1921 and separated in August 1923.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS

Famous Curwood Story on Screen at Richmond

It is perhaps has not occurred to many that way, but James Oliver Curwood, the famous author, is authority for the statement that where the climate is the very coldest the human love becomes the very warmest. It has long been a common idea among people that the warm weather of the Latin countries is the most conducive to excessive zeal in heart affairs and this belief seemed destined to persist indefinitely until Mr. Curwood got busy writing his series of intensely interesting stories of love and adventure of the Far North. He has been living up pretty close to the North Pole and in his wangling with the people thereabout he has gleaned quite a good deal of knowledge relative to their inclinations in mating. He announces that he so's forth his best demonstration in proof of his contention in his latest photoplay "Nomads of the North" which will be presented at the Richmond theatre for the last time tonight. Here is a case in fact where all the rigors of a decidedly rigorous climate plus a lot of unsettled, uncivilized, open country combined to substantially thwart most any love affair without villainous man abetting in the least. But, as Mr. Curwood has built up his story—and logically, they say—naught is powerful enough in obnoxious policies to dampen the ardor of his far northern hero and heroine towards each other.

Other features on the same program include "Hot Air," a Lee Moran comedy; "Screen Snapshots" of screen stars.

COUNTESS KAROLYI GAINS ENTRY TO U. S. DESPITE CHARGES SHE IS DESPITE

Countess Catherine Karolyi, whose husband was president of the Hungarian Republic during the six months of its existence, came to this country to make a three months' president of the National Security League tour. S. Stanwood Merken, League, attempted to have her denied admission but she made a detailed denial of his charges, declaring that she and her husband, Count Michael Karolyi, were in no way associated with or sympathetic toward Bolshevism or Communism. Merken alleged that her activities in Hungary gained for her the name "Red Catherine." This photograph of the countess was made when she arrived in New York.

Clever Picture For Wesley Fete

Go home, said the old derelict, go home to your mother before it's too late. The boy returned on Christmas eve, the little old home was dark, deserted dilapidated. His heart stood still. Was she dead? Was he too late? He fled to the little old church. Another woman now sat in his mother's old place at the organ. Despairing, he turned to God, kneeled in the snow and bared his breaking heart. And then something happened. His little dog discovered him, led him to a mean hovel, poverty stricken, wherefrom within came the sobbing voice of his mother, singing "Bring him back to me even with all his blight, Oh where is my wandering boy tonight." No mother—no son—no daughter can remain dry-eyed during these heart-choking scenes. The picture with the heart punch, the picture of smiles, tears, laughter, joy, sorrow and happiness all entwined around a beautiful love story.

You'll love the wayward boy, you'll love the picture. It's great. Filmed from the old song of the same name it presents the outstanding melodramatic success of the present season.

It's a story you will never forget. It brings you joy, laughter, smiles, tears, paths and happiness in generous measure. Take the whole entire family to see this clean, fine, big, wholesome picture.

The sisters attribute their longevity to hard work and quiet living.

New Appearance of Virgin Brings Thousands to Lourdes

By BASIL WOON
(By Universal Service)
PARIS, Nov. 3.—A report that the Virgin has appeared again at Lourdes—the first apparition recorded in more than fifty years—is responsible for the vast increase in pilgrimages this year, according to a local paper of Lourdes.

The paper recounts that a child, the grandson of the sister of the original girl who, by "seeing" the vision, founded the shrine some seventy years ago, has twice been "visited" by the Virgin, but in a different spot from the grotto where she originally appeared.

The boy is fourteen years old and considerable mystery surrounds the date and place of his experience. But the mere rumor that another apparition had occurred at the world-famous shrine has been sufficient to redouble interest by Catholics the world over.

It is estimated that one hundred and eighteen thousand pilgrims have visited Lourdes during this season. The Lourdes pilgrimages usually commence in July and continue until November, but the heaviest months are August and September.

The original "voyante" of Lourdes, who was a girl aged nine saw the vision in the cliff on the spot which is now the famous Grotto, is still living in a convent in the North of France. She has not revisited Lourdes for forty years.

The number of crutches over the entrance to the Lourdes Grotto is now augmented to 6,000—all donated by cripples who claim that the miraculous qualities of the place cured their ailments. Every day from eight o'clock in the morning until dark thousands of sick people pray outside the entrance of the Grotto. Many remain on their knees four and five hours at a time.

There have been eight pilgrimages this year from the United States, which breaks all previous records. The largest number of pilgrims comes from France. After France comes Italy, Spain, Belgium, Ireland, Great Britain and Holland, in order. Sometimes as many as forty special trains bearing pilgrims arrive at Lourdes during one day.

Scoutmasters to Hold Meet Tuesday

Tuesday, November 11, is the time set for the meeting of all the scoutmasters, their assistants and troop committeemen of Richmond at the scout home, where plans for the coming year will be discussed.

Also on Friday the court of honor examinations will be held at seven o'clock in the scout hall. Later on in the evening the scout band will hold their regular practice.

In 1890 Eddie Hare stowed away aboard a ship bound for Australia and there he won his first bout. Since then he has won 300 battles and lost only three and he is still meeting the little fellows in his class. In 1898 Hare walked from Cape Town to Johannesburg, about 110 miles, to fight Jimmy Darrell from whom he won the bantam-weight championship of South Africa. Many of his early battles were fought under the old-time regulations before the Marquis of Queensbury code eliminated the brutal features.

Serving by Growing

EVERY time an installer signs for a telephone instrument at the stock room counter and starts out for the home or office of a new subscriber, where he is to connect it with the Bell System, he is serving you.

Each new telephone added to the system puts you in potential contact with the users of this new instrument. Every new installation, anywhere, increases the scope of your service; makes your telephone more valuable to you.

Since the invention of the telephone in 1876, many improvements in equipment and in operating methods have combined to increase the value of telephone service to the individual subscriber. Not only has it been made possible to hear clearly over the telephone, and at far greater distances, but also to be promptly connected with a larger number of subscribers—for the telephone serves by growing.

The number of Bell System telephones is growing at the rate of about three quarters of a million a year—a fact which at once illustrates the increasing value of telephone service to existing subscribers and its increasing acceptance by the public as indispensable to modern life.

A Big Turnover

"It is claimed that the average woman has only about 1,800 words in her vocabulary," said old Si Chestnut, "but if that is so, there is usually a tremendous turnover."

Fellows like old Si enjoy at the expense of the women, but even if the women DO talk, they are usually better managers than the man. Let the women handle the pocketbook and nine times out of ten the family will save more money. Besides, they will keep their surplus funds in the bank and pay by check. Suppose they do talk. They usually make good.

Was You Ever Made The "Goat?"

What do you think of a man that will allow himself to be the "Goat?" By this we mean to bear some other person's faults. To take the blame for this or that in order to shield some one else. It may be his employer, or it may be in politics. It may be this, that or the other. But sometimes a man is made the "GOAT" innocently and bears the blame bravely, rather than to squeal. What do you think of him? Is he to be pitied or censured? In our opinion, it all depends. Perhaps some of you have been in this same predicament. We have, and we don't know what to think of ourselves for not standing up for our own rights. We don't know whether to condemn ourselves or compliment ourselves. It is a hard question to answer, and we would rather not think about it. One thing is certain, when you see a bum piece of printing, please don't make us the "GOAT." We did not do it, for we don't do that kind of printing. And, furthermore, our prices are always fair to you and we alike. Yes we do Wedding Stationery.

Ban Placed on Unrestricted Dances in County

MARTINEZ, Nov. 5.—Ban on dancing after 1 a. m. in unincorporated parts of the county was adopted yesterday afternoon by the board of supervisors following presentation of petitions signed by between 400 and 500 persons, residents chiefly in Rodeo, Pinole, Richmond, Concord, Pittsburg, and Antioch. The petitions were presented by Rev. H. V. Thomas of Rodeo.

In presenting the petitions complaint was registered that after midnight, parties from Oakland visit dances in the western end of the county many times solely for the purpose of creating disturbances. Stockton people were similarly accused of creating disturbances at dances in the eastern end of the county.

Many arrests have been made at dances in unincorporated territory on charges ranging from peace disturbances to possession of liquor. Statements of officers that the majority of arrests have involved outsiders are sustained by the records of arrest.

Practically every signer on the petitions expressed a desire for an ordinance prohibiting dancing after midnight.

In presenting the petition, Rev. Thomas declared the petitioners were not asking an absolute ban on dancing, but that it was felt some restriction should be placed on their conduct.

California in Minia ture Shown by New Relief Map

An aeroplane view of California, faithfully reproduced to a scale, may be had any day after November 19, in the nave of the San Francisco Ferry building. It is a colossal, panoramic, relief map, "California in Miniature." The view is exactly as if one skimmed through the air above the mountains and valleys, cities and villages of the Golden State, but it has this advantage over the aeroplane trip in that the spectator may stop and study any particular section at will.

The map, the largest of its kind ever constructed, is 600 feet in length, showing every topographical feature of the State from the Oregon line to the Mexican boundary. The spectator has unfolded before him the beautiful coast line, with its bays, harbors and coves, even battleships, steamships and yachts being displayed in miniature. Fertile valleys and massive mountain ranges, rivers and streams, the magnificent system of State and County highways and railroad lines with miniature trains are all in plain view of the on-looker. All cities and towns, large and small, are reproduced with miniature buildings and their area, environment and relative importance are clearly shown at a glance.

More than twenty five artists, modelers, electricians, geographers, sculptors and engineers have been engaged in the construction of this

Thanks Public For Vote For Water Bonds

At last the water bonds have carried. The East Bay District has marked a way out and laid down a path for its future. I am gratified over this action, not only because it is the outcome of the work of the water commission of the East Bay cities, and especially of the strenuous labors of the Board of Directors of the East Bay Municipal Utility District for the past year and a half, but because of what it means to this wonderful community on the east shores of San Francisco bay.

I feel sure that I speak for all my associates on the Board of Directors when I express the very keen pleasure afforded by this united action on the part of the people of this district on account of its significance in the development of these nine cities.

MARSTON CAMPBELL,
President, East Bay Municipal Utility District.

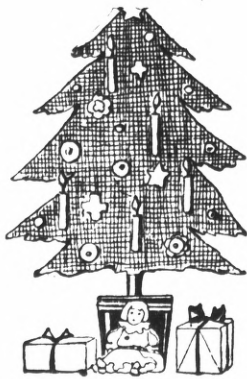

Given Jail Term on Larceny Charge

Peterson was arrested in the vicinity of the Western States Gas and Electric Company. He lives in San Francisco.
